PASSING OF THE OLD COFEDERATES

Tribute by Editor Harry A. Sommers in the Elizabeth-town News.

Last week the Orphan Brigade held a reunion in Elizabethtown and the probability is that it was the last one these old soldiers will ever hold in our city. The boys of '61 are now gray-haired veterans, many of them feeble and waiting for the summons for the reunion up above. The passing of these men is only a question of a short time, and Kentucky will never have anything like them again. They were reared under different conditions from that of the present generation. They came upon the scene of action before commercialism had put the dollar mark upon our brows. They rode into battle as to a frolic. They smiled at death and met it in a hundred forms without a quiver of fear. They charged a battery with debonaire air of men going to a party. They were mild of speech yet fearful in encounter. They were gentle as a woman and yet brave as lions. They rode away to join Lee or Johnston with the nonchalant air of the knighterrant of old, who performed some feat of daring for the honor of his lady-love. The world has never known a higher type of chivalry than the southern gentleman who battled in the sixties. They were prototypes of Gen. Lee, their great commander, modest and unassuming, with a deference for women, born of their breeding and training, matchless soldiers, but matchless gentlemen as well. We cannot equal them; we are unworthy to be compared with them. Silver-headed and all past the age of seventy, we noticed at the reunion here all those splendid qualities which mark the gentleman of the South before the civil war, their generosity in awarding honors and glory to others, which belonged to themselves; their courtesy and gallantry to the ladies, which the young men would do well to imitate, but can never equal. They have lost none of the buoyancy of spirit, none of the frolic and fun which marked their early life. No wonder the Daughters of the Confederacy pay them such great esteem. They are entitled to it all and worthy of it.

Phillipine Independence.

The Jones Phillipine Bill, which declares the purpose of the United States to recognize the independence of the islands "as soon as a stable government can be established there," passed the House.

LUKE McLUKE SAYS

The two most mysterious things in the world are a woman and a Chinese laundry ticket.

When a man has to swear off doing anything it means that he isn't going to quit.

A girl could have lots of fun having a good cry if she didn't know that crying made her nose red.

Every sixteen-year-old girl announces that she wouldn't marry the best man living. And she always keeps her word.

When a girl has a cute little nose, two pretty eyes, a kissable mouth and a pimple on her face, she imagines that the only thing a man notices is the pimple.

There is a big difference between being Good and being Goody-Goody.

After she marries him she spends so much time trying to mend his ways that she hasn't any time to mend his socks.

We rush around all day trying to save time so we will have more time to kill.

The average married woman imagines that her husband's motto is: "If at first she don't believe, lie, lie, lie again."

A woman likes to shine in society, but that doesn't keep her from powdering her face.

After the women get the vote the department stores will advertise bargain sales in the Majestas.

The reason why some men don't speak to their wives for a week at a time is because they don't like to interrupt them.

There may be a lot of secrets between husbands and wives. But what they think of each other isn't one of them.

The number of Good Losers in the world is greatly exaggerated.

A fat woman always feels a whole lot thinner when she sees a woman who is fatter than she is.

DON'T STOP--KEEP AT IT.

The war across the pond has affected business a little but not enough to cause the people of this good old commonwealth to go into despondency and stop the usual way of making use of the advantages and the luxuries that most every one has been enjoying. Just now there has been a little talk of quiet business. If your business is quiet advertise. If it is good keep advertising. It is the only way to let the outside world know what you have to offer to the market.

If the other fellow asks how is business, say "fine" and it won't be long 'till you really think so yourself and get busy advertising and you will see where you win.

Now let's all get together and push, advertise and "don't stop"—"keep at it."

HORSE MEAT SOLD

And Louisville Man Gets A Term In Jail.

A. C. Koch, of Louisville, has been fined $100 and sent to jail for 50 days for having horse meat in his possession. Dr. W. E. Gray, of the Health Department, testified that he found four carcasses of horses in Koch's possession and Koch's claim was that he slaughtered only horses, disposing of the meat at 50 cents a pound to the Louisville Gelatine Works, and some to a man living on The Point for his four dogs. When Dr. Gray remonstrated with Koch, at that time, according to the testimony, regarding the unsanitary conditions of the slaughtering pen. Koch protested that he was not operating a slaughterhouse for the slaughter of meat for human consumption.

Landslide Coming.

This is a Democratic year everywhere. Early in President Wilson's administration when the Tariff bill and the Revenue bill were up for discussion there was some feeling among businessmen that too much legislation was being attempted, but now that these measures have been enacted into laws the country is determined to give President Wilson's policies a fair trial. The Democratic majority in Congress will be continued for the reason that any change in National affairs at this time would be disastrous. Men of all parties have confidence in President Wilson's patriotism and judgment, especially at this critical time when the very wisest management is needed to save the country from disaster. President Wilson deserves a vote of confidence and he will get it not only in Kentucky but in every other State where the issue has been raised.

Kentucky's Best Hog.

With the passing of Defender, Kentucky still has the honor of being the home of the greatest Duroc boar living. That animal is Imperator, owned by John H. Williams, of Ashbrook Farm. Imperator, is less than two years old, but despite his youth has a reputation that is national. Some of the largest Duroc breeders in the South and West have pronounced him even a greater hog than Defender. Mr. Williams purchased Imperator as a pig and developed him. He has had some fabulous offers for him but has refused them. Imperator will be shown at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco next year.—Pembroke Journal.

JESSE KIRTLAND

KILLED TUESDAY

Assassination Reported From Clarksville --- Man Shot Down on Highway.

Clarksville, October 15.—Tuesday morning the dead body of Jesse Kirtland was found near his home with a gunshot wound under the shoulder blade and buckshot in the wound.

Squire Ross Bellamy, who lived near, summoned a jury and held an inquest over the remains. And after hearing testimony the jury returned a verdict of death by a gunshot fired by an unknown person.

Kirtland, who has been a cropper in that community for two or three years was recently divorced from his wife, and since then each has married again, and all parties live in the same neighborhood. Sheriff Welker was notified and immediately sent a deputy to the scene of the tragedy to make an investigation. It is learned that one of the witnesses before the coroner's jury has stated that he will come to Clarksville to-morrow and tell some things that he did not tell yesterday. The people of the community are very much aroused over the affair.

The Widow In Jail.

Clarksville, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Yesterday morning Mrs. Addie Kirtland, wife of Jesse Kirtland, whose dead body was found yesterday in the woods near the Kirtland home, filled with buckshot, was placed in jail. Miss Birdie Carter, a stepdaughter of the man murdered, and also Robert Carter, a stepson, were lodged in jail with their mother. The daughter is 19 years of age, while the son is only 14, and Mrs. Kirtland says she cannot understand why she is placed in jail, unless it is to make her tell what she knows. It is thought by the officers that they should be held, as sufficient evidence was produced before the coroner's jury upon which to hold them.
